the stirring defence of his actions

London, Dec. 19.

Speaking before an apprehensive House of Commons, Sir Samuel Hoare, who yesterday resigned from his post as Foreign Minister as a result of his part in the framing of the Paris peace formula, defended his policy and his judgment. Later, the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, replied to the Labour motion of censure, which was defeated by 397 to 165 votes.

"We have no fear whatever as a nation of any Italian threat," Sir Samuel commenced, stirringly enough. "If the Italians ever attacked us we should retaliate, and, judging from our history we should retaliate with full success."

But, he explained, what had worried him during his term of office and since the outbreak of the Italo-Ethiopian war, was the thought that an isolated struggle between Britain and Italy might wreck the League of Nations.

"A great body of opinion in France is intensely nervous ever the breach with Italy," he went on. Anything likely to weaken the French defence had that effect, though France loyally continued the sanctions policy. He had never allowed a day to pass without attempting to find a peaceful settlement, he said.

"We reached a turning point in both fields a fortnight ago," declared Sir Samuel. "It seemed clear if an oil embargo were imposed it would force; the termination of hostilities. The Paris negotiations began in an atmoaphere in which the majority of the member states of the League appeared opposed to military action. No state except Britain had taken any military precautions, but it was felt this did not justify proposing any postponement of the oil embargo unless it could be shown that peace negotiations had actually started, much as we disliked some features of the peace scheme." He was thus unable to withhold his provisional consent, he said. He felt the Issues were so serious that it was worth making an attempt and it was essential to maintain Anglo-French solidarity, "It was in this spirit alone that we agreed to the auggestion. That alone was the explanation and justification of the Paris communique," declared with regard to the Assab corridor and the building of a railway. He had approved the telegram asking the Emperor of Ethiopia to favourably consider the peace plan because he was terrified that Ethiopia would be led to think that the League could do much more; for that would be leading to the terrible moment of disillusionment when the independence of Ethiopin might be destroyed.

"It was essential that if collective defence be real, we should go beyond the period of general protestations and have actual proof by action by the states of the Lengue," he declared.

LEAGUE MUST BE PREPARED

ATTACK MIGHT BE SUDDEN

London, Dec. 19, Great Britain is ready to back an oil embarge against Italy if the League approves it, but its defence must be collective, declared Mr. Neville Chamberlain in his reply t the Labour attack in the House of Commons to-day. They must be pre-pared for a sudden and unexpected attack by Italy, he warned.

Mr. Hugh Dalton, one of the Opposition's "big guns," wound up the foreign policy debate for Labour, and asked Mr. Chamberlain, who later was to reply for the Government, whether he was able to announce the name of the new Foreign Secretary.

Mr. Chamberlain shook his head decisively. Mr. Dalton asked if the Government

London, Dec. 19.

Pecresses mustered in strength in their special gallery in the House of Lords to-day to listen to the foreign affairs debate which proceeded concurrently with that in the House of Commons.

The discussion was initiated by the former Liberal M.P., Lord Davies, who invited the House to register inacceptability of the peace proposals and not to assent to any settlement inconsistent with the principles of equity and fair dealing and with Britain's League obligations.

Lord Davies urged the Government to resume the policy outlined by Sir Samuel Hoare at Geneva in September. He declared that public opinion in Europe, America and the Dominions was profoundly shocked by the proposals, which would have left an indelible stain on Britain's honour and reputation. He added that the Government had stemmed the rising tide of American co-operation with the League.

Lord Halifax, for the Government, said it was not the task of the League to stop the war in Africa by starting one in Europe, the extension of which it was humanly impossible to Lord Halifax disclosel that when Sir Samuel Hoare left for Paris en route to Switzerland he was not instructed to discuss peace or conciliation terms with M. Laval, but other kindred matters. He was involuntarily drawn into the discussion. The Government found it had to take a decision, when the terms reached them, in the face of a dilemma, as they had already been pretty fully published in the French Press.

"I make no secret of the fact that when the Government read the terms, they did not like them," said Lord, Hallfax. He pointed out the difficulty of condemning a trusted colleague in his absence. He fully admitted that the Government made a mistake, not approciating what the public opinion of the terms would be. ## LARGEST-EVER LINERS FOR CHANNEL AIRWAY

France is building the largest high-speed airliners ever seen in Europe because:

British services worked by two companies, Imperial Airways and Hillmans Airways, with luxury l'ners, have between them captured practically three-quarters of the total passenger traffic on the cross-Channel routes.

The remaining quarter is shared by French, Dutch, German, Swiss, and Belgian services.

Air France's new machines, Farman monoplanes, are to be of forty-passenger, 3,200 hors power, four-engined giants, capable of at least 180 mp.h. Undercarriage wheels retract in flight to lesson wind resistance.

In a year French average cru'sing speeds on all European services, including slower lines, have risen from 109 m.p.h. to between 130 and 137 m.p.h.

British average crusing speed, taking the two main airlines together, can be put at 114 m.p.h. France expects her new machines will put cruising speeds up to the 160 m.p.h. mark or more.

A LESSON TO THE GOVERNMENT

It is a regrettable circumstance that, so soon after the return to power of the National Government, a crisis should have arisen resulting in the resignation of Sir Samuel Hoare as Foreign submersible deck, Secretary. Consolation can, however, be found in the fact that the situation in no wise betokens any retreat on the part of the British public from the Dock VIII:, which is slightly larger, firm stand taken in support of the League system. Indeed, it is precisely because there was a fear that the Government was weakening in its attitude that MOTES OF THE DAY some of its supporters saw fit to voice their criticisms of Sir Samuel Houre's activities in acting on his own initiative-in-number of the surviving comseeking to evolve, in collaborasecuring an end-to-the-Italo-Sir-Inn-Hamilton; Of-these, Sir naval airfield, once primeyal jungle, of India, as his chief civil adviser tion war that revolutionised the Ethiopian dispute. ## CHAMPIONS PLAY I.R.C.

ODDS SLIGHTLY IN FAVOUR OF VISITORS

To-morrow will be played what I regard as the key match of the Senior League so far as can be foreseen at present. The H.K.C.C. go down to Sookunpoo to play the Indians and it should be a most interesting

Were the match at the Hongkong; Cricket Club ground I should expect the Club to have a shade the better of the game, as I have noticed that adme of the I.R.C. do not give of their best on that ground. I do not of course refer to Pereira, Madar, or Minu but to some of the younger-or perhaps I should say less experienced

I do hope and trust this will not be construed to mean that. I am belittling or depreciating some of the Indian players. Nearly all cricketers have grounds they like and gounds they don't like and possibly quite wrongly I have formed the opinion that I have

On the other hand, I don't think the Club players particularly like the I.R.C. ground, and I fancy there is very little in it between the two sides. One thing is absolutely certain and that is that the Club will have to turn out their atrongest side to win. If Hayward, the two Pearce's, Dunkley, Redmond, Duckitt, H. Owen Hughes and Price all turn out, there is the making of a very strong team. Owen Hughes of course had only just returned, looking very fit, I was and Nomads meet in a second divi-glad to see. C. card says that their first eleven are playing at King's Park and their To-night's card says that their first eleven are it the other way about, but I have no doubt they will settle it somehow. But it goes to show that all was not Badminton well with the fixing up of matches this year. Anyway, wherever the this year. Anyway, wherever the should be a very good one especially as Branwell has shown a return of form. Omar and Tinker Lee will, I think be more formidable if the game is played on the Craigengower ground. NON-LEAGUE GAME

The Army are launching out and fielding a second eleven to-morrow when their first team takes on the K.C.C. at Kowloon in a non-League Game while the second eleven are at home at Sookunpoo to the K.C.C. second, who may win; though it depends very largely what sort of a second team the Army will put out. fancy a draw will be the result. There is no denying that hereafter the

It will be observed that the amount paid out to Griffins was $550 more than that to the Australian Ponics. Although Rose Queen heads the list to be followed by King's Jubilee, the percentage of Herod's carnings is undoubtedly better owing to the fact that he started only three times as against Rose Queen's fourteen and King's Jubilee's ('even outings. ### KOWLOON JUNIORS

ATTRACTIVE CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

Relatives and friends had a very pleasant evening when the children of the Kowloon Junior School presented an entertainment in St Andrew's Hall yesterday. A nursery rhyme play by Classes 9b and 10 was the first item on the ogramme. The Three Little Pigs, the Big, Bad Wolf, Bo-Peep, Jack Horner and the other favourities of childhood were all there, and the pretty songs were well rendered. Class Da's turn was next, and they gave recitations of "Light the Lamps up Lamplighter," Rhymes of London Town." In the latter, perhaps the most appreciated were "King's Cross" by Joan Millard, "Oxford Circus" by John Meloy and

"Limehouse and Poplar," by Brian Pengelly. After the interval a fantasy, "Etain," based on an ancient Celtie was presented. Considering the age of the performers, it was very well acted, and F. Sabey as Eccaidh, King of Ireland, and M. Gelling, as Etain, a Facry Princess were excellent. A Children's Pageant of Christmas,

"Bethlehem," concluded the evening's entertainment. Audrey Dawkins was a charming Medineval Lady, while Keith Martin and Victor Broaddus were very good as "The Tall Angels." Several carols were sung, and the children grouped on the stage made a very striking picture in their credit for the costumes, each toncher

London, Dec. 19.

Speaking before an apprehensive House of Commons, Sir Samuel Hoare, who yesterday resigned from his post as Foreign Minister as a result of his part in the framing of the Paris peace formula, defended his policy and his judgment. Later, the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, replied to the Labour motion of censure, which was defeated by 397 to 165 votes.

"We have not fear whatever as a nation of any Italian threat," Sir Samuel commenced, stirringly enough. . "If the Italians ever attacked us we should retaliate, and, judging from our history we should retaliate with full success.'

But, he explained, what had worried him during his term of office and since the outbreak of the Italo-Ethiopian war, was the thought that an isolated struggle between Britain and Italy might wreck the League of Nations.

"A great body of opinion in France is intensely nervous ever the breach with Italy," he went on. Anything likely to weaken the French defence had that effect, though France loyally continued the sanctions policy. He had never allowed a day to pass without attempting to find a peaceful settlement, he said.

"We reached a turning point in both fields a fortnight ago," declared Sir Samuel. "It seemed clear if an oil embargo, were imposed it would force, the termination of hostilities. The Paris negotiations began in an atmosphere in which the majority of the member states of the League appeared opposed to military action. No state except Britain had taken any military precautions, but it was felt this did not justify proposing any postponement of the oil embargo unless it could be shown that peace negotiations had actually started, much as we disliked some features of the peace scheme." He was thus unable to withhold his provisional consent, he said. He felt the issues were so serious that it was worth making an attempt and it was essential to maintain Anglo-French solidarity. "It was in this spirit alone that we agreed to the suggestion. That alone was the explanation and justification of the Paris communique," declared Sir Samuel.

DESPITE SERIOUS OF WAR WITH ITALY

Peeresses mustered in strength in their special gallery in the House of Lords to-day to listen to the foreign affairs debate which proceeded concurrently with that in the House of Commons.

The discussion was initiated by the former Liberal M.P., Lord Davies, who invited the House to register inacceptability of the peace proposals and not to assent to any settlement inconsistent with the principles of equity and fair dealing and with Britain's League obligations.

Lord Davies urged the Government to resume the policy outlined by Sir Samuel Hoare at Geneva in September. He declared that public opinion in Europe, America and the Dominions was profoundly shocked by the proposals, which would have left an indelible stain on Britain's honour and reputation. He added that the Government had stemmed the rising tide of American co-operation with the League.

Lord Halifax, for the Government, said it was not the task of the League to stop the war in Africa by starting one in Europe, the extension of which it was humanly impossible to

Silver market tension in London appears to have relaxed somewhat today, mainly owing to the fact that America purchased some four million ounces in the Bombay market, which some 25 per cent, had previously been offered in London, where the strain was consequently relieved. Offerings in London to-day were estimated to be in the region of sixteen

LARGEST-EVER LINERS FOR CHANNEL AIRWAY

France is building the largest high-speed airliners ever scen in Europe because: British services worked by two companies, Imperial Airways and Hillman's Airways, with luxury liners, have between them captured practically three-quarters of the total passenger traffic on the cross-Channel routes.

The remaining quarter is shared by French, Dutch, German, Swiss, and Belgian services.

Air France's new machines, Farman monoplanes, are to be of forty-passenger, 3,200 horse-power, four-engined giants, capable of at least 180 m.p.h. Undercarriage wheels retract in flight to lesson wind resistance.

In a year French average cruising speeds on all European services, including slower lines, have risen from 109 m.p.h. to between 130 and 137 m.p.h.

British average crusing speed, taking the two main airlines together, can be put at 114 m.p.h.

France expects her new machines will put cruising speeds up to the 160 m.p.h. mark or more.

Herr Hitler has lost his worldfamous unruly forehead curl through the action of a German hairdresser, exiled in Athens. Herr Otto Mueller, who runs a fashionable lady's hairdressing establishment in Athens, says that he was always pained to see Herr Hitler's photographs in the papers with a long lock of unruly hair hanging down over his forehead nearly to his eye.' NOTE TO BARBER'

When the cartoonists got to work on it his pain got worse and worse. It gave too much opportunity for making the Chief look

"And so I wrote a respectful letter," he says, " enclosing a sitarper note to be handed to his

"The letter explained that the lock hung down because all the hair was of the same length, and that it should be thinned out in various lengths with a razor blade.

"I shortly got a letter back from Herr Hitler himself stating that the matter I had written about was being taken in hand, and then there came the photographs showing that the lock had been curbed.

giving away half the Ethiopian empire in exchange for a corridor, for camels. To give immense concessions to a wrongdoer at the expense of the victim, was not British justice, he maintained.

Even if there was imminent danger of war, it did not justify the Government's decision. The Government should have said that the League had failed and withdrawn its sanctions, instead of suggesting that the aggressor should be rewarded with more than he had managed to conquer. That was completely betraying th Ethiopian people.

PRINCE OF WALES LISTENS

Above; the galleries were crowded. and there was an eager straining of ears there and on the floor of the House, when Mr. Stanley Baldwin, a period of our deliberations, we had little pale, a little grim, rose to reply. The Prince of Wales was among the spectators of this eventful debate.

Mr. Baldwin spoke with emotion. First he paid a tribute to Sir Samuel Houre. He added that on this one occasion he was still convinced that what he was doing was within the framework of the League. "He has done something for which he has been condemned, and his services are lost," said the Prime Minister. The loss of his services at the present time was not only grave to the Government, but one they felt most keenly on the grounds of personal regard and affection.

AGREEMENT A SURPRISE

Mr. Baldwin said that when Si to re-convene on January 6.-Inited Samuel went to Paris to consult with M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, there has been an absence of linkson during Sunday, and they were unaware until they heard it was accomplished that an agreement had been reached.

Poverty Problem Suggestion

(To The Editor. Hongkong Telegraph)

Sir,-With reference to your editorial in yesterday's Telegraph regarding the poor of Hongkong, may l offer a suggestion. As things are it is left to a few to contribute to help the poor; how would it be to make it compulsory for everybody He was convinced the proposals renting a flat or house over a certain Mr. John R. Morris, Far Eastern volume of popular opinion, While 20 cents or so each month (the more Manager of the United Press the Government had always been the rent the more the contribution)? Associations of America, arrived in propared to leave the proposals to the This would not cost the Government anything to collect as the landlords could pay it in with the rates and

> Those living in houses rent free such as employees of firms, officers and Engineers (Europeans) on constal ships (Hongkong terminal port) , people in boarding houses, etc., could all be included, irrespective of nationality. The Government to build the necessary house or houses in the first instance and then take the cost out of the contributions; for example, say 40,000 houses and flats at an average of 40 cents each per month-$16,000 per month.

Many would "squeal" at first, but all in employment at Home have to pay into an unemployment fund to help those out of work. . Naturally this would attract many poor and needy from Canton, Macao, etc., but with a little tightening of rules and regulations this could be avoided. The money to be under Government control and a statement of accounts published yearly for the benefit of Senior Division is between Craigen- the Royal Engineers "B", -gower-and the Navy. The C. C. C. card says that their first elevel are playing at King's Park and their Second at home. The Navy Card has it the other way about, but I have no doubt they will settle it somehow. But it goes to show that all was not Badminton well with the fixing up of matches this year. Anyway, wherever the game is played it should be a very good one especially as Branwell has shown a return of form. Omar and Tinker Lee will, I think be more formidable if the game is played on the Craigengower ground.

It will be observed that the amount paid out to Griffins was $550 more than that to the Australian Ponics. Although Rose Queen heads the list to be followed by King's Jubilee, the percentage of Herod's earnings is undoubtedly better owing to the fact that he started only three times as against Rose Queen's fourteen and King's Jubilee's eleven outings. Rose Queen won two Cups for the owner Mr. Eu Tong-sen, one presented by the Blue Riband and the Lusitano Cup for "Hem" stable. It will be recalled that there were only three starters in the St. George's Plate over 11/4 Miles and as the Judges could not separate King's Jubilee and Rose Queen, a verdict of dead-heat was given. The owners then decided to toss (I do not know who suggested) for the Cup and Mr. Pearce had no luck with the spin of the coin. The public got $5.10 (Win and Places) for the excitement.

TOO MUCH FOOTBALL

More and more clear does it become that there is too much competitive football in Hongkong, and unless the Association is content with the senson stretching far into May, some methods will have to be devised to keep the programme within reasonable limits. This season, in addition to an unusually big league programme the following competitions have still to be played off: Senior and Junior Shields, Lai Wah Cup, Governor's Cup, International Charity Cup, Kotewall Cup, and special representative games such as the Children's Play-ground Fund. Furthermore there will be time taken out later in pro-. paration for the Interport when probubly two Saturdays at least will be | 9.40 B. G. Mid-week games are out of the question for most clubs until April as the players cannot get away from business in time to get the games played before the light fails. Nobody wants to see the elimination of the various cup competitions, especially as charities benefit from more than one; but the congested state of fixtures towards the end-of March and April such year is becoming increasingly intolerable and it is a position which calls for the attention of the Association. They may very well find it necessary to split the first division into two sections. A it stands to-day this division is much too unwieldy and could easily be re-
